2. Overview of the Sharesies Platform

Our Platform gives investors the opportunity to invest in shares of companies and ETFs across various Exchanges from as little as one cent. Designed with the idea that investing should be accessible for all, our Platform was created to give investors the same opportunities whether they had $5 or $5 million.

Using our Platform is different from direct investment

Your ability to buy, hold and sell Investments via our Platform, and the rights and obligations you have when you do, are different from what they would be if you were investing directly. It is important you understand those differences before deciding to join us. We explain some key differences further in this section.

Who operates the Platform?

Sharesies Australia Limited (ACN 648 811 830, ABN 94 648 811 830, AFS Licence 529893) is the operator and custodian of the Platform, but we can't do it alone.

We can appoint any person or business to advise on or perform any of our functions or responsibilities under our agreement with you where this is permitted by law. To the extent permitted by law, we may transfer any of our rights and obligations outlined in this Guide or its supporting documents in whole or in part to anyone permitted by law and who meets the appropriate requirements. Any member of the Sharesies Group is entitled to enforce these Terms.

Sharesies is not an authorised deposit-taking institution (ADI) for the purposes of the Banking Act 1959 (Cth).

Who helps us?

We work with other parties to deliver our Platform and related services to you.

These parties include a New Zealand company named Sharesies Limited which, together with its associated entities in New Zealand, provides operational, technology and custodial support (including the technology comprising the Platform) to provide you with our Services.

We also use a mix of third parties and internal Sharesies companies that have been appointed to act as sub-custodians (or sub-sub-custodians) to maintain custody of the investments held through the Platform.

We offer fractional Share trading which enables you to purchase the equivalent of a portion of a Share that we make available via the Platform. TRANSFERS ON AND OFF OUR PLATFORM.

Investors have the ability to transfer certain shares and shareholding types on and off the Platform.

Your money and Investments are held for your benefit

What we mean when we talk about 'money' in this IDPS Guide

When we refer to money in this IDPS Guide, we mean cash that we are holding on your behalf in a currency we permit on our Platform, and that was received either from you or from a third party for you.

- This may include money you've added to your Wallet or income received from an Investment you made.
- Your money excludes any fees, costs, charges or other amounts you have paid or owe to us under the terms of your agreement with us. See section 5 of this Guide for information about amounts you might be charged for using us.

We hold, you benefit

- You own the beneficial interest in the money in your Wallet (provided you don't owe any amounts to us) and the Investments in your Account.
- The legal title to your money and Investments is held on trust for you by us or third parties supporting us.
- Where a sub-custodian holds your Investment, they are the legal owner of that Investment that is held on your behalf on terms we have agreed with that sub-custodian. You are the ultimate beneficial owner of the Investment. Your money and Investments are held separately from the holder's own property, except where the law permits or requires otherwise.
- Under a trust, you beneficially own the money and Investments that we hold by us or the respective names of those third parties supporting us. We instruct supporting third parties to act on the instructions you give us in relation to your money and Investments, and otherwise as per our agreement with you.

Your Investments and money may be pooled with the Investments of other investors

- Your money and Investments will be pooled with those of other Investors and held in 'pooled accounts', also referred to as an omnibus account, together with assets beneficially owned by other Investors.
- Your Investments and money typically aren't individually identifiable in third-party registries (such as bank accounts or company share registers). This is because your money and Investments are held in our name or the name of a third party supporting us, as applicable. We maintain a register of the money and Investments you hold with us.

Differences between using Sharesies and investing directly

It is important that you understand that an Investor who holds an Investment via Sharesies will have different rights from someone who acquired and holds that Investment directly. The following table explains some of the main ways in which the investor's rights differ depending on whether they invested indirectly via Sharesies or directly:

ASPECT	INVESTING VIA SHARESIES PLATFORM	INVESTING DIRECTLY
ASSET OWNERSHIP	As explained above, an Investor who uses Sharesies does not acquire and hold investments or cash directly. The Investor is the beneficial owner of those assets but not the legal owner. The legal rights (and responsibilities) associated with owning each asset are not held by the Investor but instead by us for the benefit of the investor.	An investor who acquires an investment directly becomes the legal owner and holder of that investment, and enjoys the rights (and has the responsibilities) associated with owning it. This includes being listed as the owner with the relevant share registry.
COOLING-OFF RIGHTS	Cooling-off rights do not apply to your investments acquired through our Platform. This means that any request for a refund otherwise available to direct retail investors will be treated as a normal withdrawal request and may incur product issuer fees. If you have any unfilled orders, you can cancel these orders prior to them being filled.	Cooling-off rights may apply to investments purchased directly, depending on the investment and associated purchase contract.
VOTING RIGHTS	We have a voting policy in place that governs in what circumstances we offer voting rights to you (the Voting Policy). We do not typically offer voting rights to you on our Platform, unless required by law or otherwise outlined within our Voting Policy. A copy of our Voting Policy is available free of charge by contacting us. When we need instructions from you, we will send you a notice requiring action.	You are typically able to exercise your voting rights for your investments.
RIGHTS TO WITHDRAW	You are able to withdraw from your investments by selling all or any part of your holdings. There is no minimum amount that you must apply to sell down your holdings. To withdraw from your Wallet you must withdraw at least $0.01. For amounts of less than $0.01 in your Wallet, you will be unable to withdraw this amount. If we lose contact with you, we may donate amounts under $10 to a registered Australian charity. See section 8 for more details about what happens when we lose contact with you.	You are typically only able to sell whole shares and you may be subjected to minimum amounts before selling.
TRADE DELAYS	There may be delays in the timing of transactions you tell us to make on your behalf, when compared to if you held those Investments directly.	There may be less or no delay in transacting, when compared to if you invested via our Platform.
DELAYS IN ACCESSING INVESTMENT PROCEEDS	There may be a delay in your ability to access any income earned on your Investment. Proceeds from a sale of an investment typically are available in your Wallet within 2 business days. This is usual industry practice. Where you make a withdrawal request, we typically allow 3 business days to process your request.	There may be less or no delay in the availability of any Investment income, compared to if you invested via our Platform.

What is fractional share trading?

Enabling you to invest in whole or part of the Share

We offer fractional Share trading which enables you to purchase the equivalent of a portion of a Share that we make available via the Platform. We are able to offer this functionality by having us hold your shares on trust, meaning that you don't need to meet the minimum trading value that an Exchange requires or buy in whole share values.

Three examples to show fractional share trading in practice (at a high level, without consideration to possible fees) are provided below:

1. Company A has shares listed on an Exchange for $100 per share. The Exchange does not have a minimum trade value requirement.

An Investor has $10 to invest. They invest through our Platform. They will have 10% of a share held by us on trust for their benefit. We will hold the remaining 90%. This 90% may be held for other investors on trust.

2. Company A has shares listed on an Exchange for $100 per share. The Exchange requires trades at a minimum $500.

An Investor only has $100 to invest. They invest through our Platform. They will own one share held on trust with us. Although they own a whole share, they do not need to meet the minimum trading value requirement for that Exchange as we have completed the necessary steps, such as buying additional shares, to meet this requirement.

3. Company A has shares listed on an Exchange for $100 per share. The Exchange requires trades at a minimum of $500.

An Investor has $575 to invest. They invest through our Platform. They will own 5.75 shares held on trust with us. We will hold the remaining quarter of a share. This quarter may be held for other investors on trust.

Fractional Share trading comes with its own risks and limitations. Please carefully read this section carefully, as well as the information regarding risks about fractional investing in section 3.

Buying or selling a fraction of a Share

If your Order involves a fraction of a Share we may buy, hold or sell a whole Share and allocate the relevant fractional part of the Share or money to you. We or others may own the remaining fraction of a Share. This means we can act as principal to make such trades and buy or sell (in part) for ourselves, including trading with you and ourselves to facilitate Orders.

Specific features, terms and conditions apply to your fractional Share trading

We might not offer fractional investing for all Investments. For example, investments on certain Exchanges may be unavailable for fractionalising.

There may be practical, legal and technical limitations that mean we may not offer you the same rights or options in relation to a fraction of a Share as for a whole Share. If we make something available to owners of whole Shares (such as asking for input on voting in corporate actions) we can't guarantee we'll also make that available to an Investor who holds a fraction of that Share. If we do make it available, there may be extra limits or conditions that apply to fractional holdings. Investment Providers may also limit the rights we are then able to offer to Investors who own a fraction of a Share. For more information, read our Voting Policy, available on request free of charge.

It is also important to note that:

- Fractional holdings generally cannot be transferred off the Platform. If they are available, we will let you know at the time of requesting the transfer.
- Fractions of a Share you hold will be rounded. Depending on the type of Investment, this rounding will be to the nearest 1-8 decimal places. We round up for numbers ending in 5 to 9, and down where the number ends 1 to 4. We will display rounding to 2 decimal places in your Portfolio.
- Due to rounding, your holding of a fractional Share may not show in your Portfolio, because after rounding to the applicable decimal place it may be zero. However, the fractional share exists on our backend. If you were to purchase more of the Investment and your total holding once rounded to the applicable decimal place becomes greater than zero, the Investment would start to show in your Portfolio.
- You may have $0.00 added to your Wallet in relation to a sell Order for a fractional share if the proceeds of the sell Order minus fees and taxes are less than $0.01.

There are some limits to our Platform

Our Platform does some pretty amazing things, connecting you with a range of Investment opportunities, however it doesn't do everything.

For example, unless otherwise made available, at the date of this Guide:

- We don't manage your portfolio or the investments on our Platform.
- We don't buy, sell or hold Investments directly under your own shareholder identifier. Your Investment is bought, sold and held for your benefit by us under the relevant shareholder identifier and name. Your Investment is held on a trust.
- We have restrictions on participating in corporate actions. See section 4 for details.
- Trading is not instant and pricing information is delayed.

- We don't provide personal advice to you.
- You cannot transfer foreign currency into and out of your Wallet. You can only top up in Australian Dollars and must exchange any foreign currency to Australian Dollars (and pay any associated fees) before you can withdraw it from our Platform.

There may be other limitations on our Platform. If you are looking for a specific feature or function, you can contact us to confirm our product's capability.

For more information on risks associated with using our Platform, please see section 3 of this guide.

Getting started: Opening up a Sharesies Account

You need the internet.

To open your Account, you can complete the signup process via our Website or through our mobile App.

Sharesies is fully digital (to the extent permitted by law), so in order to be able to use the Platform, including accessing and controlling your portfolio, you will need ongoing access to an internet-enabled device that is private and secure, as well as a secure and stable internet connection.

You need to meet our Eligibility Criteria

Sharesies believes that investing should be accessible for everyone, whether you have $5 or $5 million, but you will need to meet some criteria before you can open an Account with us. We call this the Eligibility Criteria. To open an Account and use our Platform you must:

- be aged 18 or older and live in Australia.
- be an individual 'natural person' - Sharesies does not currently allow Accounts to be held by joint account holders, companies, trustees of trusts or other legal persons
- hold an account with an Australian bank or other authorised deposit-taking institution
- have a residential address in Australia

- provide the information we reasonably request
- agree to our terms and conditions as outlined in this Guide and other relevant terms, including any terms we state on appropriate conduct and behaviour
- confirm if you're a tax resident in any other country and provide the relevant tax number(s) and withholding tax rate (as applicable)

Even if you meet the above Eligibility Criteria, we don't have to open an Account for you. Where we choose not to open an Account for you, we do not need to provide you with reasons for our decision.

By applying to open an Account with Sharesies, you are representing to us that you satisfy the Eligibility Criteria and will continue to meet this criteria whilst holding the Account. If you no longer meet the Eligibility Criteria, you must tell us promptly. We may choose to close or suspend access to your Account and/or our Platform in this instance.

We can in our sole discretion choose to change or waive any of the above criteria, or impose different or additional requirements for opening or maintaining Accounts, from time to time. Doing this at one time or for one person does not commit us to continue to do so for others.

You need to be who you say you are

To use our Platform, we need to verify your identity to help us meet laws that protect you and our community.

To open and maintain an Account with us, you must provide us with the information we request. Providing this information, you are promising and representing to us that it is true and complete. If you don't provide the information we've requested, or it is false, then we may close your Account.

You need to tell us if something changes

If the information that you've previously provided to us stops being accurate or complete at any time, you must promptly update your information with us. You can do this either by accessing your personal details sections online via your Sharesies account, or by contacting us.

Sharesies is for personal investing purposes

You must only use our Platform for your own personal investment activity. You are not permitted to use it for the purpose of administering or managing any trust or business purpose without our prior approval. We may, at our discretion, permit this in writing and where we do, this use may be subject to additional terms.

We communicate with you

You may receive communications from us or on our behalf, relating to Sharesies generally or specific Investments in your Portfolio. Information about what, when, and how we communicate with you is in section 7 of this Guide.

3. Risks

All investment activity involves risk. Over time, the value of Investments may rise and fall depending on various factors. Returns are not guaranteed and the past performance of investments or currencies is not a predictor of its future outcome.

Before you open a Sharesies Account or add money to your Wallet, it is important you understand and accept the risks associated with investing and assess how those risks may impact your investing goals and align to your circumstances and risk appetite. Sharesies is not responsible for the losses you may suffer as a result of your Portfolio or the currency in your Wallet going down.

To help you understand the risks associated with using Sharesies, this section details:

- The specific risks associated with using our Platform and services.
- The general risks you may see when investing.

There may be some other risks that are associated with investing, such as risks that are unique to your situation or specific to a particular investment.

If you need more help understanding whether those risks are suitable, you should also get personal financial advice tailored to your specific objectives, situation and needs.

Certain investment choices are supported by additional disclosure documents provided by the issuer. It is important to familiarise yourself with these documents and the risks disclosed within them before making an investment choice.

General underlying investment risks

Counterparty risk

If a party in a transaction fails to meet their contractual obligations, your Investment may be impacted.

Where a company that you've invested in or are exposed to has entered into a transaction and the counterparty to the transaction does not perform its side of the deal, the performance of your Investment may be impacted.

Credit risk

When borrowers fail to meet their credit obligations, your Investment may be impacted.

Where a company or fund you have invested in has exposure to borrowers and those borrowers fail to meet their credit obligations, this can impact the performance of that Investment.

Diversification or concentration risk

Not diversifying may cause your Portfolio's value to fluctuate significantly.

Where your Portfolio has limited exposure across investments or classes of investment, you may risk your Portfolio dropping in value if a particular investment or class of investments is negatively impacted by a market movement.

Foreign exchange or currency risk

When you exchange a foreign currency, or invest in offshore markets or foreign currencies, you are exposed to fluctuations in the Australian dollar's value.

Where parts of your investment are listed in a foreign currency and you need to exchange from a local currency (or vice versa) or you have invested in an offshore market, you are exposed to the risk of exchange rates being unfavourable for your circumstances. The value of the Australian Dollar may increase or decrease and this will expose your Investment to fluctuations.

Investment option risk

The Investment you chose could perform less well than you hoped.

This risk is generally specific to the investment. An Investment you chose could fall in value because of something happening to or within the company or fund that issued that Investment to you.

There are many ways that this risk may eventuate. Some include through the wrongdoing or error of individuals whose actions affect the financial performance of your Investment, or through someone leaving the organisation you've invested in.

Doing your due diligence on an investment, such as reviewing company reports or disclosure documents, is important to understand the risks specific to that investment.

Liquidity risk

Something may happen that impacts your ability to quickly withdraw from your Investment.

There may be times where an investment can't be sold in a reasonable time period or you can't withdraw from an investment as quickly as you'd like (or at all). This may be because of a company entering into bankruptcy or receivership, or market fluctuations that reduce the buyers on the market looking for a particular investment, making your Investment harder to sell.

Market risk

Movements in the market can make investment values rise and fall.

When the market moves your Investment or Portfolio may be impacted. Market risk impacts investments differently, and can impact an entire class, sector, jurisdiction, asset, investment manager or investing style.

This may mean the investment loses all its value or makes it less liquid. This movement could be caused by changes or events that affect an entire market or class of investments, such as a change in political, legal or economic conditions (such as inflation or interest rate fluctuations), government settings and regulations including tax and interest rates, social or environmental impacts (such as public health crises, military action, natural disasters and climate change) and trends, and changes in technology, both in Australia and abroad.

Regulatory risk

Taxes and other regulations can impact your returns.

Local and overseas tax and legal requirements may affect the return on your Investments. Any change to regulation or tax conditions could harm Investment performance. As foreign laws and market rules may differ from local laws, it is important to familiarise yourself with the laws associated with the investment you are making. If you are unsure how your investments may be impacted by certain laws or tax requirements, we recommend that you seek independent advice relevant to your particular circumstances.

Trading risk

You may not be able to trade Investments or currencies at the time or the price you want.

For some investments, you will need to wait for a corresponding buyer or seller before your transaction is processed. At times, there may be few or no people willing or able to trade with you at or near the price you've set, or at all.

Buying and selling investments may also be impacted by specific rules, issuer requirements, or Exchange operating times. In addition, the responsible entity of a managed fund might suspend withdrawals (i.e. stop letting us withdraw the money invested on your behalf in that fund), or there might be a suspension or cessation of trading in an Investment listed on an Exchange. These periods where investors can't trade can be unexpected, uncertain and substantial.

Using our Platform involves risk

Separate to the risks mentioned above, there are some specific risks that come with investing with our Platform that may impact your Portfolio returns. Below is an outline of these specific risks.

Fractional investing comes with risk

Due to the way in which we accept your instructions to place an Order, you may end up with a fractional holding of an Investment in your Portfolio. To help facilitate your Order involving fractional Shares, we may purchase or sell, or connect the Order with a corresponding purchase or sale across other investors, for the remaining fraction of the Share to complete your Order. There is a risk that we may be unable to do this from time to time, which would mean that you are unable to buy or sell the particular fraction at that time. See section 4 for more information on the types of Orders we accept.

Holding a fraction of a Share may also mean that you're not able to participate in some actions (for example, exercising some corporate actions). See section 4 for more information on corporate actions and voting rights.

We rely on others to support Us

As we've mentioned in section 2 of this IDPS Guide, we rely on third parties to bring our Services to you. There is a risk that an event or state of affairs could impact one or more of our third parties and we may be unable to deliver the Services to you, or you may not be able to use the Platform or transact how you'd like, which may cause a negative impact to your Portfolio. We implement various actions to manage this risk, including how we select, monitor and communicate with our third parties, but we cannot remove the risk completely.

Although we enter into agreements with our third parties so that they understand the role they play, there is a risk that they, and any third parties who support them, could fail to perform their role, or provide services, on the agreed terms. This could, for example, impact your ability to access the Platform or your money, exchange currency, or sell the Investments held on your behalf.

The money in your Wallet and Investments in your Portfolio are yours

You are the beneficial owner of the money in your Wallet and the Investments in your Portfolio because these are held on trust for you by us.

Other than as you agree under the terms of your agreement with us (for example, your agreement to pay the applicable fees to use our Services), we aren't allowed to use the money in your Wallet or the Investments held for you.

How does insolvency of us impact you?

As the money is held by us for you, should we or a third party become insolvent, the money in your Wallet or the Investments held in your Portfolio cannot be used to pay the debts of us or third parties, nor can our creditors have access to your Assets.

If we become insolvent or materially default on our obligations (or other parties involved in your Order or Trade do), then we (or others) may cancel your Orders or Trades that haven't settled and suspend any further trading. And if a third party that holds money or Investments for you becomes insolvent or materially defaults on material obligations, we will use reasonable endeavours to enforce our rights against them under applicable contracts and laws.

Sometimes our Platform might not function as planned

We work hard to provide a great platform, but it won't always work perfectly. We are a paperless, technology-based service, so we are exposed to 'systems risk', which is the risk that any part of our IT hardware or software or telecommunications systems, including the internet, may be subject to failure or interruption and may not perform as expected as a result. Potential causes of systems issues include capacity constraints (including where Investors' demand for trading is abnormally high, such as in volatile market conditions), unauthorised access, or viruses or other types of third-party interference.

We require the smooth and orderly running of technology to be able to provide our Services to you and make our Platform available. Because of this, if a systems risk materialises and something happens to our technology or telecommunications systems, we may not be able to allow you to access or transact on the Platform how or when you would like to, including your ability to see your Portfolio and place trade Orders and have them processed.

We cannot and do not guarantee that our Platform will be 100% error-free, up-to-date, secure or uninterrupted. To the extent permitted by law, we provide our Platform and services on an 'as is' basis, without any warranty of any kind. We also exclude implied warranties, to the extent we legally can. That means you use our Platform at your own risk.

There may be times where we suspend our Platform

We may temporarily suspend your access to or use of all or part of our Platform if we have to or if we think it's reasonably necessary to do so. For example, we may suspend:

- for technical or regulatory issues (including when required by regulation or a regulator)
- during emergencies or periods of exceptional trading activity
- if we decide it is sensible in order to protect Investors or Sharesies
- to ensure other services are available to you or other Investors
- because Supplier systems are not working properly, or
- to maintain or upgrade our systems.

This could include for example temporarily suspending access to information or trading or only allowing sell Orders or only allowing buy Orders, and a suspension could apply for all Investments or specific Investments.

Our App will need to be updated

Like most mobile apps, we may ask you to install updates and upgrades from time to time. Sometimes our updates are to enhance or change the in-app experience, other times it may be to deploy a security update or for some other reason. Where we make an update available, you must follow the action we have requested from you to continue to use our Platform. If you don't do this, we may need or choose to restrict access to your Account or limit your use of our Services, or close your Account.

Unauthorised access to your Account may hurt your balance

We implement initiatives to attempt to protect your Account from unauthorised access, but if someone who isn't authorised gains access, your Portfolio may be impacted. This access could be through fraud or you giving access to someone else. You should update your password regularly and not share your details with anyone else. Where you expect your Account may be compromised, please contact us immediately.

Our offering may change

We might decide or be compelled to discontinue or change what we provide, including functionality on our Platform. Sharesies may be replaced as Operator of the Platform in future, or there may be changes to who supports us or the roles they perform. Section 7 of this Guide explains when and how Investors are told about changes.

Operational hiccups or errors may occur

There is a risk that an instruction you give us might not be processed or executed in line with our agreement with you due to issues, errors or failures caused by us or a third party. Where we have made a mistake, we will put you back into the position you would have been had we not made the mistake.

Delisted or otherwise not available to hold through our Platform

Your Investment might delist or otherwise become unavailable to hold through our Platform. If this happens to an Investment in your Portfolio, we will usually let you know in advance so you can decide when to sell (or, if possible, transfer). However, if you still hold an Investment in your Portfolio at a time when it is or will soon be no longer eligible to be held through our Platform, we may decide to sell those for you and add the resulting money (less fees and taxes) to your Wallet.

This might happen, for example, if your Investment is delisting or transferring from being listed on an Exchange we offer to an Exchange we do not offer, or if we make a commercial decision to no longer allow your Investment to be held on our Platform.

We make information available to you

There is certain information that we make available, and other information that we don't.

We don't give personal financial, tax or legal advice.

Any information we provide to you is general in nature and does not take into account your personal circumstances, needs or goals. If you are unsure about a risk, an investment, tax or legal implications, or need help to make a decision regarding your circumstances, including your Portfolio, you may wish to speak with a professional financial adviser, tax adviser, accountant or lawyer to discuss your situation before you act.

We may supply general investment information, called Market Information.

We may display, curate and create general investment information or tools such as definitions for investing terminology, pricing information, market news, data, returns, performance information, tools for calculations, and other investor information (including product disclosure statements) through our Platform and Website. We call this information Market Information.

- We own Market Information or have a licence to use it from Suppliers.
- Market Information is not personalised advice for you. It is general in nature.
- Market Information is made available only for your consideration, to help you make your own decisions. You must not share it, copy it, or reproduce it.
- Some Market Information may be subject to extra terms you must agree to before we let you access it.

- Any returns or information displayed may be estimates, and calculated based on the most recent Share price or exchange rate.
- Access to ongoing, continuous or timely Market Information is not guaranteed, and we may decide to stop supplying Market Information without notice or reason to you.

We are not responsible for outcomes of your Investments or the value of your Portfolio, including if you rely on Market Information.

You should not rely solely on the Market Information we have provided to make financial decisions. We make no promises, guarantees or warranties in relation to Market Information, including its accuracy, completeness or timeliness. We don't accept responsibility for changes in the value of your Investments related to the unavailability, delay, inaccuracy, error, or incompleteness of any Market Information or information that is based on Market Information.

We operate an IDPS and do not provide portfolio management services.

We don't provide any discretionary investment management services for your Investments. We act on your instructions or in accordance with your agreement with us.

4. Using our Platform

The ins and outs of your Wallet

Your Wallet is the section of our Platform where you can see how much available money you have to either buy an investment or withdraw from our Platform. There are several key actions that involve your Wallet:

Topping up

You will need to have money in your Wallet to place an Order.

Changing Currency

If you want to buy an investment in its local currency, you can exchange the money in your Wallet to that currency.

Investing

You can use the money in your Wallet to place Orders.

Selling

When you sell an investment on our Platform, the proceeds from the sale will be put in your Wallet.

Withdrawing

Subject to our agreed terms, you can withdraw the money in your Wallet to your nominated bank account.

Topping up your Wallet

You can deposit into your Wallet using your preferred payment method of those listed on the Platform. We may apply certain restrictions on payment methods, for example, the types of accounts you may top up from.

The minimum deposit is $0.01 AUD, but this may not be available through all payment methods. You can add to your Wallet in your local currency only. This means you can only add to your Wallet in Australian Dollars, but may be able to exchange the currency once on the Platform.

You must have sufficient funds in your Wallet to complete a transaction to buy an investment, cover any pending transactions and pay any other fees, costs or other amounts you owe under the terms of your agreement with us. We can delay acting on your Order until you have sufficient funds in your Wallet. We will not be responsible for any loss in value or potential gain due to a delay for this reason.

When you sell an Investment, the funds received from the sale will be placed into your Wallet.

The balance in your Wallet may be positive, negative or zero. If it is a negative balance and you top up your Wallet or sell an Investment, we will apply this amount against your negative balance. If you have a positive balance in one currency and a negative balance in another, we may choose at our discretion to apply the positive balance against your negative balance. If we do this, you will be responsible for the currency exchange fees incurred in this transaction.

To help protect you, us and our community, we have the following restrictions in place to help combat financial crime.

- If you top up, do not Trade and want to withdraw your money, you may be restricted to withdrawing your money to the debit or credit card or bank account that you topped up with.
- We may set limits on the amount you can top up by debit or credit card in a given period.
- We may require you to top up from (or withdraw to) a local bank account held in your own name, as a one-off or ongoing requirement.

What if Sharesies can't tell which Account money should go to?

- If you have provided the wrong reference details when you added money to your Wallet, we might not be able to identify which Account the money should go to, so you should contact us as soon as possible if you realise this has happened.
- If we can't identify which Account money should go to, we may hold that money while we wait to hear from you and try to find where the money should go. If we do not hear from you or otherwise cannot find where the money should go after some time, we may return the money to the source. We keep any interest earned on this money while we hold it.

What if money is added to my Account by mistake or unintentionally?

- You agree that if we incorrectly add money into your Wallet or Investments in your Account, or you otherwise have a windfall in your Account due to our error, we can take that money or those Investments out again at any time.
- If you have withdrawn or invested that money or traded those Investments, on our request you must pay us money equivalent to the value of money incorrectly added into your Wallet or Investments in your Account.

Changing currency

Changing or exchanging one currency for another currency, such as Australian Dollars (AUD) for US Dollars (USD) is called Foreign Exchange, Forex or FX.

We make FX services available to you through our Platform. We do this by separately transacting with third parties. The currencies that you may exchange from AUD into are listed on our Platform. This may change from time to time, and we may choose to remove the ability to exchange currencies without notice to you.

If you want to buy, hold or sell an Investment issued in another country, you'll first need to use those FX services to perform FX transactions on money in your Wallet.

Generally, if you:

- wish to make a global Investment, you'll need to exchange your local currency for the relevant foreign currency first (and pay the associated fee).
- sell a global Investment, you'll receive foreign currency in your Wallet.
- earn income on a global Investment, you'll receive foreign currency in your Wallet.

Where you have foreign currency in your Wallet, if you want to withdraw this off the Platform you will first need to exchange that money back into Australian Dollars, and pay the associated fee (see section 5).

Things to know about our FX services

- We charge you FX Fees for FX Orders: please see section 5 'Fees and other costs'.
- You cannot cancel or change your FX Order once you submit it.
- The exchange rate displayed at the time you are submitting your FX Order may differ slightly from the rate actually applied to your transaction, within a margin we have set. The applicable rate is not confirmed until you receive confirmation of your FX Order. If the exchange rate has moved materially, you may receive an error screen and need to re-submit your FX Order.
- You can only withdraw money from the Platform in your local currency. If you want to withdraw money that is in a foreign currency, you must first exchange it on the Platform to your local currency and our FX Fees will apply.
- We don't guarantee we will accept your FX Order. If we do not accept it, any Trade you instructed that depends on that FX Order will not proceed.

- We may cancel an FX Order or any associated Order or Trade at our discretion. It might make sense for us to cancel where we discover errors or something unexpected happens with the third parties we use to provide FX.
- We may change the currencies available for exchange. If we do this, and you hold money in your Wallet in a currency that will no longer be available on the Platform, we will complete the exchange for you back to AUD.
- You agree to only place FX Orders for the purpose of making an Order for Investments or withdrawing money from your Wallet.
- Deducting amounts from your Wallet balance from time to time (in line with your agreement with us) is generally how we will charge you the fees and costs associated with your use of the Platform. See section 5 of this Guide for more information.
- It is possible for your Wallet to show a negative balance. For example, this can happen when you owe an amount of money to Sharesies and we reflect that amount via a negative balance in your Wallet, if the previous balance was insufficient to enable us to recover the amount owed. An example of when this might occur is where a fee or tax associated with a trade and which you must pay was not deducted at the time of the trade for some reason - we can deduct the amount from your Wallet later which could result in a negative Wallet balance, depending on the amount owed and the previous balance. If we deduct third-party plan fees or subscription fees that you have previously agreed to pay, this may also make your Wallet balance go negative, or make an existing negative balance bigger.

Withdrawing from your Wallet

You can withdraw money from your Wallet by logging into your Account and following the steps on the withdrawal page.

- Withdrawals must be paid into your nominated bank account. We may restrict the type of bank account we can withdraw to. This is generally done for the purpose of protecting you and us. For example, we may require your nominated account to be a local bank account held in your own name.
- We may ask you for further information and may restrict withdrawals while we wait on further information from you.
- If your Wallet contains less than $0.01 then you will not be able to withdraw that amount.
- If your Wallet contains non-transacted gift or promotional code values that you have not directly deposited from a bank account you own into your Wallet, we may restrict you from withdrawing these funds. We may cancel any unused promotional code values in your Wallet, new or existing, after 12 months since their addition to your Wallet.
- When transferring money into and out of our Platform you must do this only with the intention of buying and selling Investments through our Platform (or withdrawing money you have used for that purpose). We are entitled to close an Account where we reasonably form the view that the investor has a different intention.
- For so long as you have a negative Wallet balance, you cannot place a buy Order that would send your Wallet balance further into negative unless we allow otherwise, and we may further restrict your ability to use our Services at our discretion until enough money has been added to your Wallet to return the relevant Wallet balance to zero or a positive balance.
- If you owe us money, we'll send you a notice to pay us.
- If your Wallet has a negative balance and you top up or receive money into your Wallet, this will set off against your negative balance.
- If you still owe us money after we give you reasonable notice to make payment, we may:
 - direct those who support us to pay us using the money in your Wallet (including converting currency to local currency first at our applicable FX rate and fees)
 - direct those who support us to sell (or otherwise deal with) Investments in your Portfolio and pay us with money from this sale

- set off money you owe us against money we owe you
 - cancel or suspend your access to our Platform and/or any of your Orders without any responsibility to you
 - register a security interest / lien over your Investments
 - take legal action against you to recover any debt and any costs and expenses we incur in recovering the debt.
- Your Wallet balance may include the money you are expected to earn from a sell Order (net of applicable fees, costs and charges) before that sell Order has settled. Where we allow this, we might impose restrictions such as not allowing you to withdraw or invest some or all of that money until the Order has settled.
- Your right to withdraw from an Investment you have made via the Platform may be different from the rights you would have if you invested directly in the relevant Investment. For more information, please read the information on rights to withdraw in the section titled 'Differences between using Sharesies and investing directly' in section 2 of this Guide.

Rounding

We apply rounding-off to the decimal places associated with amounts or values in your Wallet or your Portfolio. We also apply rounding to the decimal places associated with amounts (inputs and results) involved in fee calculations. Sometimes we round upwards and sometimes downwards, depending on the context. This means that the application of rounding could result in an upward or downward change in the relevant amount or value, depending on context. The number of decimal places that we round to will also depend on the context.

Investment income goes into your Wallet

If your Investment earns money (such as if you sell it or it pays a dividend or distribution) we will deduct any applicable fees, costs and taxes and add the balance to your Wallet. See section 5 'Fees and other costs' and section 6 'Tax information' and other reporting for more information on how these may apply to amounts otherwise payable on your Investments.

If your Investment earns money in a currency we don't offer to you on our Platform, those earnings will be converted to a currency we do offer and our standard FX Fees will apply.

There may be a delay between your Investment earning you money and that money being available in your Wallet. Delays happen for reasons including our processing times and those of the relevant Exchange, Investment Provider or bank. The length of this delay can vary across Investments and Exchanges.

If the functionality is available for you to provide us with a standing instruction to reinvest dividends for an Investment, you might not have the most current disclosure documents, including PDS, for that Investment at the time that we act on your instruction and acquire the additional holdings. It is important that you routinely review the disclosure documents of Investments that you have standing instructions associated with, and amend or cancel those instructions as you see fit.

In some cases you may receive no money in your Wallet in relation to a completed sell Order if the proceeds of that sell Order minus applicable fees, costs and taxes is a very low amount. Please see section 5 or details.

If your consent is required to receive money or income you agree we can provide that consent for you.

What if my investment gives me extra shares (not money)?

If your Investment delivers additional Shares in an Investment we offer on our Platform, those Shares will be added to your Portfolio.

If your Investment delivers additional Shares or other items of value that we do not hold on our Platform, we'll typically try to get that item to you but we may not reasonably be able to do so given technical or other constraints (including restraints imposed by laws or due to our own commercial decisions).

Investing with Sharesies

In simple terms, to invest on our Platform you:

1. Take a look at the available investments listed on our Platform.
2. You make a selection and tell us which investments to buy.
3. We do our best to complete your Order.
4. When the time comes, you sell your Investment.

Investments available via the Platform

We have multiple investments available on our platform.

- Generally, we make all listed-companies and ETFs accessible where they are listed securities on Exchanges that we've made available through our Platform, providing those securities are in accordance with our Investment Menu Policy. This is an internal policy, but more information can be shared about our selection process by contacting us. A list of the available securities on our Platform is provided in our mobile App and on our Website.
- We may make changes to our Investment Menu. Where this creates a material adverse impact, we will let you know. See section 7 on how we communicate changes.
- Disclosure documents for investments on our Platform are available directly from the security's issuer. This may include a company's annual report, a product disclosure statement (PDS), prospectus, target market determination or other form of disclosure material. For listed securities, this information is generally publicly available, in addition to its formal offer document. For unlisted investments, the disclosure material is usually available directly from the issuer.

- We may offer you the ability to participate in alternative forms of investment through the Platform. We act as neither issuer nor offeror in regards to these investments.

You tell us which Investments you'd like to buy

Once you've found an investment (or investments) that you'd like to buy, you can tell us to arrange to buy the investment by placing an 'Order' via our Platform. This type of Order is classified as a 'buy Order'. For reference, if you place an order to sell an investment that you hold via our Platform, we call this a 'sell Order'.

When you place a buy Order, there are a few things to keep in mind:

- you need enough money in your Wallet to cover the Investment and the fees and costs for that transaction.
- It is your responsibility to review the relevant disclosure material for that particular Investment.
- It is your choice as to whether the investment is right for you. We do not give personal advice or make recommendations about certain investments.
- Investments are purchased in the currency applicable to the jurisdiction where the Investment is based/listed or otherwise offered. See "Changing currency" section above to review the details on changing to the relevant currency.

We do our best to complete your Order (in accordance with our agreement with you)

When you place an Order we work with others to carry out your Order, providing it is in accordance with our agreement with you.

- You agree that we can:
 - complete a buy or sell Order or FX Order with ourselves or with others

- act for you as both a buyer and seller
- act for the other side in a Trade you told us to make
- be the buyer or seller for our own account in any Trade
- accumulate or bundle Orders
- delay acting on your Orders for any reason, including to allow for 'crossings' (as defined in the ASX Rules or NZX Rules, as applicable)
- pool your money and Investments with those of other Investors in accordance with our Investor Monies & Investments Holding Policy
- set, change or remove limits that apply to Orders, including FX Orders. We can do this generally or for particular Investments or Investors. For example, we can:
 - limit the dollar value, number of Shares, frequency, or type of Orders you can make
 - limit your Orders or Trades by number or value - for example by imposing a daily investing limit.

You might choose to sell your Investment

When the time comes, you might decide to sell an Investment.

- To sell an Investment, you will need to hold the investment in your Portfolio.
- You can give us the instruction to sell an Investment by submitting an Order. We do not make recommendations with regard to selling investments.

Trading in Listed Securities

Listed Shares are Shares that are listed on an Exchange.

How do Listed Share Orders work?

The particular method and parties involved in trying to make your Listed Share Order a successful Trade will depend on the type of Investment and the Exchange on which it is listed.

Generally, there are 2 types of Orders you can place: a Market Order or a Limit Order.

For some Investments or Exchanges, we may only provide you with the option to place a limit Order in whole Shares, and may not provide the option to place a limit Order in dollars or a limit Order with fractions of a Share.

The differences are set out below. Please read this together with section 5 which explains how much you must pay to make each type of Order, and when and how those amounts are paid.

		‘market Order’		‘limit Order’
		“Sell/Buy Shares for me at the going market rate”		“Sell/Buy Shares for me at the price I’ve set or better”
Buy Order		Enter the dollar amount you want to spend on this investment.	in dollars	in Shares	Enter the highest price you want to pay per Share and the number of Shares you’re willing to buy.
	What we do	We try to buy as many Shares (including fractions of a Share if applicable) as we can for you with this amount after taking into account fees and costs.	We try to buy as many Shares (including fractions of a Share if applicable) as we can, up to the total amount of money you entered, at or below the price you entered.	We try to buy as many Shares (including fractions of a Share if applicable) as we can, up to the total number of Shares you entered, at or below the price you entered.
Examples	I want to buy $500 of shares in XYZ Limited <hr/> You pay: $500 including fees and costs	I want to spend $500 on shares in XYZ Limited at max $5 per share <hr/> You pay: Up to $500 including fees and costs	I want to buy 100 shares in XYZ Limited at max $5 per share <hr/> You pay: Up to $500 plus fees and costs
Sell Order		Enter the dollar amount that represents the approximate gross proceeds (i.e sale proceeds before fees and costs) you hope to get for the Shares you want to sell .	Enter lowest price you’re willing to accept per Share and the number of Shares you’re willing to sell .
	What we do	We try to sell as many Shares as we can for you (including fractions of a Share, if applicable) after taking into account fees and costs, up to the amount you entered.	We try to sell as many Shares as we can (up to the total number you entered) at or above the price you entered.
Examples	I want to sell $1000 of shares in ABC Limited <hr/> You receive: $1000 minus fees and costs	I want to sell 500 shares in ABC Limited for at least $2 per share <hr/> You receive: At least $1000 minus fees and costs

Stop-Loss and Trigger Buy Functionality

We also have available stop-loss and trigger buy order functionality for some securities, depending on the Exchange. If an investor sets a trigger price on a security that has access to the stop-loss and trigger order functionality and the price for that security reaches the trigger price during normal trading hours of that Exchange, a stop-loss or trigger buy order becomes a market order and is placed in a queue to be filled.

From this point, typical market order processes apply, which are discussed above.

How your Listed Share Order becomes a Trade

By instructing us to place an Order to buy or sell Listed Shares, you authorise us to arrange for that Order to be placed:

- on the Exchange, or
- with our supporting third parties (including their third parties), or
- where your Share Order is below a specific threshold, we may transact with you ourselves in accordance with our Best Price Policy.

Sometimes your Order on the Exchange may process almost immediately and become a Trade, but it can take longer for several reasons. For example, you might have placed your Order outside of the Trading Day, or your Order may be waiting on a corresponding trade counterparty in the market, or the Exchange may have suspended trading, or third-party systems or our systems may be unavailable or experiencing delays.

Prices for Listed Investments often change

The price of a Listed Investment shown in the Platform when a Trade completes is often different from the price that was displayed when you placed your Order. This could be for various reasons.

- The prices shown in the Platform are delayed and the process for an Order to become a Trade takes time. During that time the price of the Listed Investment can change a little or a lot. You acknowledge that the price we show on the Platform when you place an Order may not be the final price you pay.

- If you have placed a limit Order the price is fixed (we wait until the price of the Investments match your limit Order (or parts of your Order) and it only Trades to the extent that it does match).
- If you have placed a market buy or market sell Order for a Listed Investment, the price you buy or sell at will be the price at the time the Order (or relevant parts of your Order) becomes a Trade on the Exchange.

What happens after we get your Order?

We send your Order to be processed, as follows:

Time we receive Order	Order sent:
During the Trading Day	As soon as we reasonably can.
Outside the Trading Day	At the start of the next Trading Day.
Exchange or technical issues Exchange down or one or more Investments have suspended trading or we are having issues – such as technical interruptions	As soon as we reasonably can after trading resumes or technical issues are resolved. If trading is suspended, we may reject your Order, hold your Order until we decide to place it on the market or reject it, or place it on the market to queue for when trading resumes.

Exchange pre-open, pre-close, halts or other auction phases

Orders may or may not be put onto an Exchange during pre-open or pre-close market sessions, halts or other auction phases. Typical (though not guaranteed) processes for Exchanges are as follows:

- NZX: We hold Orders until ordinary trading resumes and then place them
- ASX: We place Orders to market that queue until ordinary trading resumes
- US: We hold Orders until ordinary trading resumes and then place them

We may offer extended trading hours for some Exchanges. This allows for Orders to be filled before or after regular market hours. Where extended trading hours are available, we will provide more information on the Platform, in our App and on our Website.

- We may do this shortly after the Trade has completed. However, we may wait until the Exchange or relevant parties have settled the Trade and we have received the money.
- Typically an Exchange operates on a “T+2” basis, meaning that a Trade is settled 2 trading days after the Order traded on the Exchange.
- If we decide in our discretion to show the money representing the expected Trade proceeds in your Wallet and update your Portfolio before the Trade settles, we might put some limits on what you can do with that money, such as restricting withdrawals, until the Trade has settled.

Exchanges you can trade on through Sharesies

An Account with us lets you trade Shares listed on the following Exchanges:

- The NZX
- Australian Exchanges: ASX
- US Exchanges: NASDAQ, NYSE, and CBOE

More information about each Exchange is set out below.

We may change, without notice to you, the Exchanges available on the Platform, including adding or removing Exchanges.

Where we have removed an Exchange from our Platform and you hold Investments listed on that Exchange, we may give you an option to transfer the shares to another platform or security registry (where available) or sell the investments.

Specifics of trading on the Australian Exchanges

- If you place an Order for ASX-listed Shares, this gets passed to our broker-dealer who trades, clears and settles on our behalf.
- In some circumstances, you may be able to transfer ASX-listed Shares that you own outside of our Platform to your Portfolio and vice versa. Where this functionality is available, the information for this function is available on our

By placing your Order, you are taken to acknowledge and agree the following:

- We might not have direct contact with the actual buyer or seller on the other side of the Trade.
- Each Exchange has different rules and processes that you, we, and third parties will need to comply with. If you need further information, we recommend you research the relevant Exchange first.
- The processing date or time for your Trade will depend on our requirements and the requirements of third parties.

We add money to your Wallet once the Trade has settled, and sometimes sooner

For Listed Investments, for a completed sell Order we add the sale proceeds, less fees and certain taxes, to your Wallet.

Website, in the App or by contacting us, including terms and conditions that apply to such a transfer.

Specifics of trading on the NZX

- Sharesies NZ is authorised by NZX as a Trading and Advising Participant, Clearing and Settlement Participant, and Depository Participant (as those terms are defined in the NZX Rules). There are different NZX Rules that will apply to Trades of NZX-listed securities through the Platform.
- When you buy and sell NZX-listed Shares through us, we use Sharesies NZ to clear and settle the Trade under the NZX Rules. They may also use a third-party clearing participant.
- Under the NZX Rules, you agree that Sharesies NZ acts on your behalf as a buyer (or seller). This is called a novation. You give Sharesies NZ full and exclusive rights, power, and authority as your agent under the NZX Rules (including to bind you to the C&S Rules), and you authorise us to direct Sharesies NZ to direct money or Shares held for you (as you instruct us to under the terms of our agreement with you).
- CHO, an entity which is owned by the NZX operator, stands in the middle of Trades for NZX-listed Shares. This means that Sharesies NZ who holds NZX-listed Shares for Investors don't have any direct contact with the actual buyer or seller on the other side of the trade.
- Sharesies NZ deals with CHO.
- Because of this, you don't have any rights against or obligations to CHO to clear and settle the Trade but Sharesies NZ does. When you buy and sell NZX-listed Shares through Sharesies, the Trade may be settled using the depository operated by CDO and its Depository Nominee, both of which are owned by NZX.
- When the depository is used, CDO and the Depository Nominee will treat Sharesies NZ Nominee (or, if applicable, its sub-custodian) as if it is the sole beneficial owner of money or Shares they are holding. Except as ordered by a court or required under their own Depository Rules, CDO and the Depository Nominee don't have to recognise your interest in that money or those Shares.

- This means you don't have a direct right or potential claim against CDO, only potentially through us. You agree that you will not assert any right or interest against CDO, the Depository Nominee or any person acting on their behalf. CDO and the Depository Nominee must, however, hold that money or those Shares on trust for us (indirectly via Sharesies NZ Nominee or its sub-custodian). This protects the money and Shares against a claim by CDO or any other market participant. Sharesies NZ Nominee holds its interest in the money or Shares on trust for you as the ultimate beneficial owner.
- CHO, CDO, the Depository Nominee, New Zealand Clearing and Depository Corporation Limited and NZX's liability to you is limited or excluded by the C&S Rules and the Depository Rules.

Specifics of trading on the US Exchanges

- If you place an Order for US-listed Shares, this gets passed to a US-based broker-dealer who trades, clears, settles and provides sub-custody of these assets
- We may contract with you ourselves if your Trade is below a threshold (which we set from time to time and which is subject to change) rather than passing the Trade to our US-based broker-dealer.

Transferring Shares

In some circumstances, you may be able to transfer Shares that you own outside of our Platform to your Portfolio and vice versa. Where this functionality is available, the information for this function is available on our Website, in the App or by contacting us.

There may be additional terms that you will need to agree to when requesting a transfer. These will be available for your review in-app and will also be provided at the time you make your request.

Trading in Unlisted Investments

How do Unlisted Investment Orders work?

Unlisted Investments are Investments that are not listed on an Exchange.

- Our Platform may include Unlisted Investments. If Unlisted Investments are available to you, you will see them in your Account.
- If you place an Order to buy an Unlisted Investment, we'll try to buy you as many Shares (including a fraction of a Share) as we can for the dollar value of your Order at the time your Order is completed.
- If you place an Order to sell an Unlisted Investment, we'll try to sell the number of Shares (including a fraction of a Share) you enter to sell.

How your Unlisted Investment Order becomes a Trade

- An Unlisted Investment Trade happens if and when your Order to buy or sell Shares is completed by the Investment Provider. This depends on the terms and conditions of that Unlisted Investment and can take some time.
- Typically, when you place an Order for an Unlisted Investment, it joins a group.
 - The group is sent to the relevant Investment Provider once each Trading Day.
 - If your order is placed on a non-Trading Day or after the group has been sent for the day, it joins the group for sending on the next Trading Day. The daily cut-off time may vary.
 - Your Order may be delayed for reasons outside our control - for example, the Investment Provider's systems may be unavailable.
- Different Unlisted Investments have different processing times to complete a Trade. Please read the disclosure documents issued by the relevant Unlisted Investment Provider to understand what these timeframes will or might be.

- The price for your Order is not confirmed until the Investment Provider completes your Trade. The actual price is set by the Investment Provider at the time they complete your Order.
- We'll add to your Wallet the money you receive for a completed sell Order (less fees and certain taxes) as soon as we reasonably can once the Trade is settled by the Investment Provider.

Prices for Unlisted Investments can change

- Where an Unlisted Investment is available on our Platform, the price of an Unlisted Investment shown in the Platform when a Trade completes (being the price at which your Trade occurred) is often different from the price that was shown when you placed your Order.
- Prices we show in the Platform are delayed and the process for an Unlisted Investment Order to become a Trade takes time. During that time, the price may change. This is a risk you take on.

Auto-invest Orders

Our Platform allows you to place Auto-Invest Orders for certain Investments.

An Auto-Invest Order is a standing instruction you give to us to regularly repeat a buy Order for a particular investment. This also includes our Auto-Invest dividend functionality, which triggers a buy Order for an Investment you hold for the value of the dividend, including the relevant fees. The Auto-Invest dividend functionality is not a dividend reinvestment plan issued by the security's issuer.

The investments which are eligible for an Auto-Invest Order are listed on our Platform. We may change the available investments for Auto-Invest or the terms of its use, including adding or discontinuing an available investment, at any time at our discretion.

If setting up an Auto-Invest Order is available to you, you will see this option in the Platform and you may make an Auto-invest Order via the Platform. Auto-Invest may not be available for all Investments or customers.

As we rely on the instructions you have provided us for the Auto-Invest functionality until you instruct us to act otherwise, we may acquire the relevant Investments on your behalf without you having a current PDSs or disclosure document for that financial product or security.

Like all investments available on our Platform, the disclosure documents, including PDSs, TMDs and annual reports, for the investments you have instructed us to acquire on your behalf are available directly to you from the company you are seeking to acquire an investment from. This includes fund managers and companies.

You acknowledge that we will continue to follow your Auto-Invest Order instructions and make acquisitions until you advise us otherwise or the Auto-Invest Order is terminated by you or us.

How Auto-Invest Orders operate

- We bundle Auto-invest Orders together and place these once daily.
 - Each part of your Auto-Invest Order is treated as a separate Order and any associated fees and costs will apply separately to each of those parts. For example, If you place an Auto-Invest Order that involves buying 4 separate Shares, fees and costs may apply to each of the 4 buy transactions. See section 5 'Fees and other costs' for more information.
 - To process an Auto-Invest Order, you will need to complete the instruction form on our Platform. This will tell us which shares you have selected from the available investments for Auto-Invest Orders, how much you want to invest and how frequently to process your Order.
 - You must have enough money in your Wallet to meet the total cost of the transaction each time the Auto-Invest Order repeats. If you don't, it won't go through. This requires you to ensure your Wallet is topped up.
 - If your Auto-Invest Order fails because you don't have enough money in your Wallet or for other reasons, your Auto-Invest Order stays in place and we'll typically retry that Order on the following relevant Trading Day and then in line with your Auto-Invest schedule.
- You may stop future Auto-Invest Orders at any time from within your Account (but may not be able to cancel an Order that is already processing).
 - If an Investment in your Auto-Invest Order becomes unavailable to buy through our Platform the Order to buy that Investment will be removed from your Auto-Invest Order, the remaining buy Orders in your Auto-Invest Order (if any) would continue unless you instruct us to stop these, or they are also no longer available. You must follow the Auto-Invest instructions to continue to have your Auto-Invest Order fulfilled.

Dividend Reinvestment Plans

- Where an issuer of a security makes a Dividend Reinvestment Plan (DRP or DRIP), we may make this available on our Platform. If you hold an investment and it has a DRP that we have made available through our Platform, we will list this in-app.
- It is your responsibility to ensure that you obtain the relevant disclosures from the security issuer for the DRP, including regularly checking for and reviewing updated disclosure documents as they become available. Sharesies will not provide you with disclosure documents for DRPs. As it is your responsibility to ensure you have the most recent disclosure documents, you acknowledge that we may follow your instructions without you having the latest PDS or disclosure document for that security.
- You acknowledge that we will continue to follow your instructions for a DRP until you advise us otherwise or the DRP is otherwise terminated.

Cancelling your Order

Sometimes you can cancel an Order you have given us. Where this is possible, you can do this from within your Account on our Platform.

You can't cancel any part of an Order that has become a Trade.

We cannot and do not guarantee that you can cancel an Order before it has become a Trade.

We might cancel or delay your Order or Trade

In some circumstances, we may refuse to action or cancel all or part of your Order, FX Order or Trade and we don't have to give you reasons for doing so.

It might make sense for us to refuse to act on your instructions or cancel an Order or Trade if we think any of the following apply:

- it is likely to breach our Terms, or the law
- cancellation is required or may be permitted under Exchange Rules
- the Exchange recommends or requires a particular action, such as cancellation
- it contains, or is based on, an obvious error
- it could cause or contribute to market stability or system integrity concerns
- a third-party broker-dealer, clearer, custodian or sub-custodian has or will restrict an Investment
- we know or suspect there has been a security breach
- it is a limit Order set at a price we or our third parties consider to be too far outside the prevailing market price
- any other circumstance that would be considered reasonable to cancel an Order or refuse to act on your instructions.

Limit Orders expire (and are cancelled) when they aren't filled

- If you place a buy or sell limit Order for a Share, this may wait on-market for up to 30 trading days (US and NZX-listed investments) or 30 calendar days (ASX-listed investments) for the limit price you specified to be reached.
- If that limit price isn't met within the timeframe outlined, the unfulfilled portion of the limit Order is automatically cancelled.

Cancellation fees and other consequences of cancellation

- For a buy limit Order that is cancelled because it expired before it was filled, the money is returned to your Sharesies Wallet.
- When an Order is cancelled, we look to make the money available in your Sharesies Wallet as soon as we can. If it's cancelled when the market is closed, the money should appear back in your Sharesies Wallet when the market next reopens. You'll receive the money back into your Sharesies Wallet in the currency placed when buying an investment, minus exchange fees.
- For a sell limit Order that is cancelled because it expired before it was filled, the investment stays in your Portfolio.
- If you notice errors, you need to let us know ASAP and in any event within two days by contacting us via the chat function that is in-app or on our Website. You must take all reasonable steps to reduce the chance of you or anyone else suffering Loss.
- You agree to pay us for any Loss we or our related parties or those supporting us incur due to errors in your instructions. You also agree that we will be entitled to recover and reflect any such Loss via a deduction from your Wallet, including where this results in your Wallet having a negative balance. You agree we can convert and deduct any money held in foreign currency in your Wallet (including charging any associated fees and costs) for the purpose of recovering the Loss.

Processing Trades

We confirm your Trades using a trade confirmation notification called a Contract Note.

It is your responsibility to promptly check Trade details are correct

Check your Contract Notes promptly to make sure they are correct. If you believe the Trade is incorrect in any way, you need to let us know ASAP by contacting us via the chat function that is in-app or on our Website, and within two days.

We send you confirmation when your Trade is complete

- You agree this is a paperless service.
- You agree that we make information about your Account, trading, Investments, and tax available to you exclusively through our Platform or email at our discretion and we do not send you paper statements.
- You agree we can send you Contract Notes electronically through our Platform or email at our discretion.
- We send you a Contract Note when the Trade is complete.
- If an Order is partially completed on a Trading Day, then you will receive a Contract Note for only that part of the Order that has completed. If other parts of your Order are completed later, you'll get a separate Contract Note for each completed part on following Trading Days.
- We may show an Investment in your Portfolio before the buy Trade has settled or we may wait until settlement has happened.
- If we do show the Investment before settlement, we can impose restrictions, such as not allowing trading of that Investment until settlement has happened.

Auto-invest order processing times

Auto-invest Orders go out after 12 PM on the day they're scheduled to occur. If your Auto-invest is due to occur on a weekend day, it will be placed after 12 PM the next Trading Day. The money for your Order is taken from your Sharesies Wallet in Australian dollars (AUD).

What happens if you don't give us what we need to settle a Trade

If we're unable to deliver Investments for a Trade by the necessary time because you do something you shouldn't do, or don't do something you need to do, then we may cancel the Trade (if possible), buy back, sell, or take possession of the relevant Investments involved or register a financing statement on the Personal Property Securities Register over the Investments in the Trade, and you must immediately pay any direct or indirect Loss we incur as a result.

Extended Trading Hours

Extended Trading Hours refers to the sessions before and after normal market hours that an Exchange is open. Not all Exchanges offer Extended Trading Hours and we may not make Extended Trading Hours available to all securities listed on the platform.

If the Extended Trading Hours functionality is switched on, you will need to specify if you are not seeking the Order to be processed during the Extended Trading Hours. If it is not enabled, Orders will be processed during normal trading hours.

Orders placed during Extended Trading Hours may also fill during normal trading hours. There may be time limits for an Order to be filled when the Order is made during Extended Trading Hours, including cancelling the Order after that session or at the end of a post-market extended trading hours session.. If this is the case, and an Order isn't filled, the Order will be cancelled.

Settlement

'Settlement' is when ownership is transferred and we receive the Investments or money to hold for you.

- We're not responsible for Loss caused by any delay in settling a Trade resulting from circumstances beyond our control or the failure of any other person or party (including you) to perform all the necessary steps to complete your Trade on the settlement date.
- We arrange Trades for you solely as your agent and we may act also as principal to a Trade.
- We may update your Portfolio to reflect your completed Order shortly after the Trade has completed but before settlement. However, we may need to wait until the Exchange or Investment Provider has settled the Trade.
- You'll receive the benefits of holding an Investment from when we receive confirmation that your Order has been completed. At that point, the Investment will form part of the valuation of your Portfolio.

Things can change with your Investments

Investments can be impacted via a variety of different factors. For example, they can:

- go up or down in value
- be restructured (such as with a spin-off, split, consolidation or company merger)
- give rights to vote
- give other rights (such as rights to options or warrants)
- be delisted.

Restructures

If your Investment is restructured, the number and value of your Shares may change (such as with mergers, splits and consolidations) or they may be replaced by Shares in a different Investment (such as with mergers) or with money and Shares.

Corporate Actions (including capital raising and voting rights)

If your Investment raises capital or provides the right to vote or other rights, we may or may not make participation available to you. If we do make participation available, it may be subject to additional terms and limitations that may be imposed by the Investment Provider and/or us.

We have a Voting Policy in place that governs in what circumstances we offer voting rights to you. We do not typically offer voting rights to you on our Platform, unless required by law or otherwise outlined within our Voting Policy. A copy of our Voting Policy is available free of charge by contacting us.

When we need instructions from you, we will send you a notice requiring action.

5. Fees and other costs

DID YOU KNOW?

Small differences in both investment performance and fees and costs can have a substantial impact on your long-term returns.

For example, total annual fees and costs of 2% of your account balance rather than 1% could reduce your final return by up to 20% over a 30-year period (for example, reduce it from $100,000 to $80,000).

You should consider whether features such as superior investment performance or the provision of better member services justify higher fees and costs.

You may be able to negotiate to pay lower fees. Ask the fund or your financial adviser.

TO FIND OUT MORE

If you would like to find out more, or see the impact of the fees based on your own circumstances, the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC) Moneysmart website (www.moneysmart.gov.au) has a fee calculator to help you check out different fee options.

General Fees and Costs Information

This section shows fees and other costs that you may be charged. These fees and costs may be deducted from your money (including money held outside of the Platform), from the returns on your investment or from the Financial Products offered through us.

You should read all the information about fees and costs because it is important to understand their impact on your investment.

Transaction Fees are 1.9% per Order up to an applicable fee cap (depending on the Exchange). These Fees and caps are explained below.

- We also offer pricing plans that offer coverage of Order Transaction Fees for specified amounts of Order values depending on the plan.
- While the Transaction Fee doesn't change, coverage on the plans may mean you pay a reduced Fee depending on the value of Orders you place during the period. This may also mean that if you do not use all the coverage available to you during that period, you may have paid more than you would have if you had paid the Transaction Fee on a pay-as-you-go model. We do not provide refunds on plan fees or rollover unused coverage amounts.

These models are explained in more detail below.

The total Fees and costs payable by you will include the costs of using the Platform, as well as any additional Financial Products chosen by you. It is important that you understand the costs.

Fees and other costs for particular investment options are set out in the relevant disclosure document for that Investment, which is available from the investment's issuer if applicable. For more information, please see 'Additional explanation of Fees and Costs', below.

Taxes are addressed in another part of this document: see section 6.

For more information on these fees and costs, see the 'Additional Explanation of Fees and Costs' section below. Additional fees and costs will be charged by the issuer of each Investment you decide to invest in.

If you had an investment of $50,000 at the beginning of the year and you put in an additional $5,000 during that year, you would be charged fees and costs in the range of:

³ Depending on the number of transactions placed, value of those transactions and the Exchange the assets are listed on. Fees could range from $25 NZD to $93.23 NZD for NZX-listed shares and $5 USD to $93.23 USD for securities listed on the United States Exchanges, where non-Australian listed securities are purchased. Cost of product for 1 year

The cost of the product gives a summary calculation about how ongoing annual fees and costs can affect your investment over a 1-year period for all investment options. It is calculated in the manner shown in the Example of annual fees and costs.

The cost of the product assumes a balance of $50,000 at the beginning of the year with a contribution of $5,000 during the year. Additional fees such as an establishment fee or an exit fee may apply: refer to the Fees and costs summary for the relevant option.

You should use this figure to help compare this product with other products offered by managed investment schemes.

Additional explanation of Fees and Costs

The total fees and charges that you will need to pay will include the costs of using the Platform as well as the cost of any Investments you choose. This means it is important that you understand the fees and costs of any Investment you are considering selecting, as these will apply in addition to Sharesies fees, together with transaction and Account costs incurred on your behalf (if any). The fees and costs of an Investment we offer via the Platform are generally set out in the disclosure document for that Investment. We can provide you copies of those disclosure documents free of charge - just ask us.

Transaction costs

When investing your Money in line with your instructions and our agreement with you, we may incur transaction costs such as brokerage, settlement costs and clearing costs. These transaction costs are an additional cost to the Investor. Generally they are incurred when a change is made to the Investments held on your behalf following an instruction given by you. Sharesies may use some of those amounts to pay those supporting us or third party service providers for the relevant service (e.g. brokerage).

The transaction costs shown in the Fees and Costs summary above are shown net of any amount recovered by the buy-sell spread (if any) charged by us.

Investor activity-related Fees and Costs

You may be charged other fees based on activity in your Wallet, as set out below.

Foreign Exchange (FX) fee

We charge an FX fee each time we exchange money in your Wallet on your behalf when you told us to or we decided to do so. This can be a standalone event or part of a trade.

The FX fee is 0.6% of the amount that needs exchanging or you specify to exchange.

The FX fee is deducted before the foreign exchange occurs, out of the amount you specify for exchange. The balance of your specified amount is then exchanged and the proceeds are made available in your Wallet or used for your requested transaction, as applicable. For example, if you tell us to use $1,000 in your Wallet to buy Shares listed on a US Exchange, we deduct an FX Fee of $6 and we use $994 AUD at the exchanged US rate to place your buy Order.

Retained interest fee

Where Sharesies or an associated entity has received money from you or on your behalf, the entity holding that money may be paid interest by the bank or other financial institution where that money is kept.

We will be entitled to keep any interest earned on the money held on your behalf. When you open an Account with us, you are agreeing to the payment of this fee and acknowledging that you will not be paid any interest on money in your Wallet or otherwise held for you.

Orphaned Account

If we receive money associated with your Investments after your Account is closed, we will follow applicable unclaimed money legislation and make reasonable attempts to contact you. Where permitted by law, we may deduct a reasonable amount to cover our attempts to contact you and, if we are unable to contact you, we may choose to donate unclaimed monies remaining to a charity of our choice where the value of the investment is $10 or under.

Depository fee

If you instruct us to invest in an American depository receipt (ADR) on your behalf, you may be charged depository fees. These are charged by the depository bank that issued the ADR and passed through to you by us. The fees relate to management of the ADR by the bank that issued it, and are based on how many ADRs you hold. Generally, the fee is less than $0.10 USD per ADR annually.

The ADR decides, from the options below, how and when depository fees are charged:

- If the ADR pays dividends, the fee will be deducted from any dividends on the ex-dividend date before they're added into your Wallet.
- Otherwise, the fee will be deducted from your Wallet balance after the ADR charges us the fee.
- Or it could be a mix of both — part of the depository fee deducted from your dividends and the rest deducted from your Wallet.

Account closure fees and costs

If we decide to close or suspend your Account for any of the reasons we explain under 'Closing your Account' in section 8, you must pay us any costs or expenses incurred in connection with closing or suspending your Account that we decide at our discretion to pass through to you.

Low balance fee

If your Wallet contains less than $0.01 then you will not be able to withdraw that amount. And if your Account is closed while your Wallet has this balance, we deduct from your Wallet and keep the amount of the Wallet balance.

Rounding fee

As explained in section 4 of this IDPS Guide, we may apply rounding-off to decimal places in the numbers (inputs and results) involved in fee or cost calculations. In some cases, the application rounding might result in you being charged a fee or cost that is higher (by a very small amount - between $0.001 - $0.009 than the amount that would be determined by the relevant calculation formula if no rounding were applied.

Tax

Unless we say otherwise, all fees in this section of the IDPS Guide are inclusive of GST, and net of any reduced input tax credits.

Please refer to section 6 for information about the potential application of tax laws to your Account and your Portfolio.

Pricing Plans

We offer optional plans to investors, which include coverage of certain fees explained above. An investor does not need to subscribe to a plan to use our Platform.

Investors who subscribe to a plan can benefit from offsetting certain transaction and contribution costs detailed in the fees and costs table above. Plans include coverage of linked bank transfer fees.

The optional plans investors can access are:

$5 PLAN	$10 PLAN	$20 PLAN
Cost is $5 per month or $54 annually	Cost is $10 per month or $108 annually	Cost is $20 per month or $216 annually
$500 AUD of orders with transaction fees covered per month	$1,000 AUD of orders with transaction fees covered per month	$3,000 AUD of orders with transaction fees covered per month
$1,000 AUD of auto-invest orders with transaction fees covered per month	$3,000 AUD of auto-invest orders with transaction fees covered per month	$8,000 AUD of auto-invest orders with transaction fees covered per month

Fee caps still apply to plans. This may mean that when you place a single Order above you the coverage included in your plan, you will be charged the maximum capped fee instead of using your coverage amount. You should always review the final fee on the applicable review screen before placing your Order.

Other fees may still apply despite subscribing to a plan, this includes Foreign Currency Exchange fees and debit and credit card top up fees.

The features and benefits of a plan may change from time to time without notice to you unless you are subscribed to a plan. Plan inclusions are listed on our Website and in-app.

You can change or cancel your plan at any time. Downgrading or cancelling your plan takes effect at the end of your current payment period. Upgrading your plan takes effect immediately, but you'll need to pay the difference in plan fees. We will not provide you a refund of plan fees.

Changes in Fees and Costs

All Fees can change without the consent of Investors, including the introduction of new Fees. We will provide you with at least 30 days notice before introducing or increasing Fees. Updates for Fee changes will be provided to you on our Website and by notification to our investors in writing, via email and in-app message, depending on the nature of the change, unless otherwise required to notify you via physical mail.

Fees and costs, such as investment management fees and costs, of underlying investments may vary at the discretion of that fund manager. The fees and costs will be disclosed in the product's offer documents. We will not provide you with notice of variations to an investment's management cost, this is your responsibility to understand what fees might be charged by the investment's provider.

Calculation of Management Fees and Costs

ORDER TYPE (See section 4 for details)	HOW WE CALCULATE AND RECOVER THE TRANSACTION FEE	EXAMPLE
Market Order placed in dollars	We calculate the Transaction Fee as well as (and based on) the amount available to invest (for buy orders) or receive (for sells) net of the Transaction Fee. We deduct the Transaction Fee from the total Order Amount you entered.	If you place a buy order of $100, Sharesies deducts a $1.86 fee, and the amount invested on your behalf is $98.14. $(\$98.14 + \$1.86 = \$100)$ $(1.9\% \times \$98.14 = \$1.86)$
Limit Order placed in dollars	We calculate the Transaction Fee as well as (and based on) the amount available to invest (for buy orders) or receive (for sells) net of the Transaction Fee. We deduct the Transaction Fee from the total Order Amount you entered.	If you place a buy order of $100, Sharesies deducts a $1.86 fee and the amount invested on your behalf (for buy Orders) or added to your Wallet (for sell Orders) is $98.14. $(\$98.14 + \$1.86 = \$100)$ $(1.9\% \times \$98.14 = \$1.86)$
Limit Buy Order, placed in whole or fractional Shares	When you place a limit buy Order in Shares, the displayed Transaction Fee is an estimate. Once your Order is filled and the price per Share is known, the Transaction Fee is calculated based on the amount actually invested. We charge you this Transaction Fee in addition to the amount you selected to invest. In other words, the total amount you will be charged is the amount you told us to invest plus the Transaction Fee.	If you set: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • $5 as the highest price per Share to pay, and • 10 as the number of whole Shares, the maximum amount to be invested for you will be $50. Based on the amount actually invested we calculate a $0.95 Transaction Fee ($1.9\% \times \$50 = \$0.95$), so the total amount you are charged for this Order is $50.95.
Limit Sell Order, placed in whole or fractional Shares	Once the sale price per Share has been confirmed, we calculate the Transaction Fee such that the amount you receive (the net amount) plus your Transaction Fee equals your Order Amount. In other words, the amount you receive in your Wallet is your Order Amount minus the Transaction Fee.	If you set: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • $5 as the lowest price per share at which to sell, and • 10 as the number of whole shares to sell, your Order Amount will be at least $50. We calculate the Transaction Fee and the net amount components of the Order Amount, as follows: If the sale occurs at $5 per Share, we deduct a $0.93 transaction fee and you'll receive $49.75 in your Wallet ($1.9\% \times \$49.07 = \$0.93$) and $(\$49.07 + \$0.93 = \$50)$.

If you have a complaint about an Investment in your Portfolio, you will be able to use the same dispute resolution procedures that the relevant product issuer makes available to people who invest directly in that product.

If you have a complaint in relation to a financial product (other than a security) that you invested in through us, we will take reasonable steps to help you and the relevant product issuer resolve your complaint. You can make such a request in relation to a particular communication, or a standing request in relation to a class of communications.

To make a request of this kind, please contact us via our Website or via the in-app chat function. Where you have made such a request, we must provide the information as soon as practicable after the information is received or otherwise becomes available to be provided to you.

When and how we make changes

We like to keep things up to date. We also need to move with the times, to make sure we can continue to offer a quality Platform to all our Investors. This means we might do things like:

- make changes to the Platform to help it perform better
- change those supporting us
- change the fees and costs payable by an Investor because our costs have increased or for other reasons, or
- propose changes to our agreement with you to reflect an updated approach to managing our business.

Where the change is not materially adverse

If the information in this Guide is no longer current and the updated information is not materially adverse from the point of view of a reasonable Investor, then we can let Investors know about the change by posting a notification in the Disclosures section of our website, www.sharesies.com.au/disclosures.

Within that section of our website you can also access details of any changes of this kind that we have made previously. We can also provide Investors and others with updated information of this kind on request. The updated information is available free of charge by contacting our Investor Care team.

Examples of updates we would tell you about via a notice on our website:

Making an additional Exchange available for you to trade on through our Platform

Enhancements in our Platform's technology that improve the services you use

Other changes

If we need or want to make a change to any aspect of what we offer and the change is or could be materially adverse from the point of view of a reasonable Investor, then we would give you updated documentation with information explaining what is changing and when, at least 30 days before the change takes effect. We can provide notices of this kind either via your Account on the Platform or via email to the address you provided at sign up, or else in any other way permitted by law, at our discretion.
